CONTENTS

PREFACE

OVERVIEW

PART I. ARGUMENT

1: Examining the Importance of Epochs
2: Debt Games and Play: Toward a Model of Debt Rescheduling
3: A Situational Theory of Payoffs and Intervention Decisions
4: A Theory of Situational Change

PART II. EPOCH 1: 1820s TO THE 1860s

5: The Intersection of High and Low Politics: Mexican Debt Rescheduling, 1824 to 1867
6: Guano Makes the World Go 'Round: Peruvian Debt Rescheduling, 1823 to 1850s

PART III. EPOCH 2: 1860s TO THE 1910s

7: From Stability to Chaos: Mexican Debt Rescheduling, 1867 to 1914
8: To the Victor, Go the Spoils (and Headaches): Peruvian Debt Rescheduling, 1875 to 1900s

PART IV. EPOCH 3: 1910s TO THE 1950s

9: Riding on the Storm: Mexican Debt Rescheduling, 1916 to 1942
10: Years of False Hope: Peruvian Debt Negotiations, 1930 to 1953

PART V. EPOCH 4: 1970s TO THE 1990s

11: The Good Guys Get Tired: Mexico in the 1980s
12: The Politics of Confrontation: Peru in the 1980s and 1990s
13: Collision Course: Argentina in the 1980s and 1990s
14: The Search for Independence: Brazil in the 1980s and 1990s

PART VI. IMPLICATIONS

15: Conclusion

APPENDIX
BIBLIOGRAPHY

INDEX (to be added)